SAMUEL CABOT.

A Loyal Alumnus, a True Friend, Respected by All Who Knew Him.

Very rarely is the Institute called upon to mourn the loss of such a loyal and energetic alumnus as Samuel Cabot, whose funeral took place in King's Chapel yesterday.

Mr. Cabot was the son of the late Samuel and Hannah Lowell Cabot, one of Boston's oldest and most respected families. He was a pupil in the Boston Public Schools and a student in the chemical department of the Institute, completing his course in 1870, but is not entered as a graduate in his class as he did not prepare a thesis. He studied chemistry for several years in Germany and upon his return worked as a chemist in a prominent Lowell print works. He later went into business for himself in Chelsea, and has since done much experimental work in the manufacture of lamp black, shingle stains, sulpho-naphthol, and a quilted fire-proofing material. That Mr. Cabot was a man of exceptionally broad interests and marked culture is evidenced by his work in natural history, music and art, and especially in his investigations of the Baconian theory of Shakespeare's works, of which he was a strong advocate. He was also interested for some time in the development of flying machines. He was a trustee of the Riverdale Land Association and was prominent as a member of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, the St. Botolph Club, and the Technology Club.

The relations of Mr. Cabot to the Institute have always been inspired by interest and loyalty. He was appointed a member of the Corporation in 1889 and was for many years chairman of the visiting committee of the chemical department. He was also instrumental in the appointment of the auxiliary visiting committees from the alumni. He took a special interest in the chemical department of the Institute, and donated several valuable pieces of apparatus to the department besides contributing for special purposes, one of which provided for the expenses of members for travel in the interests of instruction.

Mr. Cabot lent his hearty support to every branch of student activity, and, as a member of the Advisory Council in Athletics, has done much for the encouragement of athletic competition. He was quick to realize the great need of the Institute for a proper athletic field, and responded with the gift of the land for the Tech Field. He gave the loving cup on which are engraved the numerals of the successful classes in the Field Day contests, and was also the donor of the Cabot medals for physical development.

The Boston Transcript speaks of Mr. Cabot as follows:

"A man who despised whatever was mean or sordid, he had a wonderful power of radiating, as it were, sincerity, honesty of purpose, truthfulness and sympathy for those in trouble. This was felt by all, who even casually came

HONOR SAMUEL CABOT.

One Hundred Upper Classmen Pay Last Respects to Memory of Loved Alumnus.

In response to the call of the Institute Committee for students to represent Technology at the funeral service for the late Samuel Cabot held yesterday in King's Chapel, a large number assembled in 6 Lowell to do honor to the memory of one who has always proved himself a true friend of the Institute.

L. Allan, president of the Senior Class, who addressed the meeting, announced that not more than one hundred men could be seated in the little church, and stated that these would be picked from the two upper classes.

The procession formed in front of Lowell Building and marched four abreast down Clarendon and Beacon Streets to King's Chapel, where they were accommodated in the gallery.

The large number of friends which filled the body of the church was eloquent testimony to the respect and admiration in which the deceased was held by all who knew him.

The service was a short but most impressive one. Shortly after 12 noon, the casket was borne down the aisle by the eight bearers, preceded by the Rev. Howard M. Brown who officiated.

The music consisting of the anthem "Integer Vitæ," and Hymn No. 307 "A Happy Life," by Sir Henry Wotton, was rendered by a quartette of male voices.

The ushers were: Henry B. Cabot, William R. Cabot, George L. Cabot, Dr. Arthur Tracy Cabot, George E. Cabot, Robert Peabody, Edward Cunningham, Prof. Robt. H. Richards of Tech, and Prof. Charles L. Jackson of Harvard. The pall bearers were: William R. Cabot, Godfrey L. Cabot, Dr. Arthur Tracy Cabot, Samuel Cabot, Edward Cunningham, Prof. Robert H. Richards, Augustus Hemenway, and James Lovett.

M. E. SOCIETY MEETING.

The Mechanical Engineering Society admitted a number of men to membership, made arrangements for a society dinner in December, and listened to "A Strange Story of the North Woods," told by William Lyman Underwood, at its meeting Tuesday evening at the Tech Union. The following men were appointed to arrange for the dinner: S. R. Miller, '07, W. W. Bigelow, '07, R. A. Angus, '08. The dinner will be held in place of the regular monthly meeting, about December 20. It has been left to the committee to make all necessary arrangements and members of the society are requested to inform the committee whether they will be able to attend and where they would prefer to meet.

The story told by Mr. Underwood, who is a lecturer in the Biological Department of the Institute, was of a bear whose mother was killed by the cook in a logging camp in the North Woods. The cook then found the little fellow and took him home to show his

CROSS COUNTRY RESULTS.

Cornell Wins, with Pennsylvania Second and Tech Third.

For the sixth time Cornell won the intercollegiate cross country race this year with Pennsylvania only three points behind. Technology finished third, with Yale fourth. The first two teams had the race all their own way, as Cornell took second, fifth, seventh and eighth places, while Pennsylvania got first, third, fourth, and seventeenth. The individual prize went to L. P. Jones, a lean, lanky runner from Pennsy, after one of the greatest sprints in the history of intercollegiate hill-and-dale running.

For Technology, MacGregor won sixth place, coming in a minute behind the leader. The other Tech men finished as follows: Howland 14, Callaway 16, Chapman 20, Udale 24, Batchelder 29, and Patch 44.

Forty-nine runners, seven each from Cornell, Pennsylvania, Yale, Harvard, Columbia, Princeton, and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, started over the course and all except four finished. J. W. Brodix, the Columbia captain, gave out after covering three miles, as did S. R. Glover of Princeton, and A. Beck of Pennsylvania.

Capt. J. L. Eisele of Princeton, the favorite for the race, led for more than half the distance, and then gave up. Only a short time ago Eisele had an operation on his eyes and the strain told on him. E. B. Parsons, the Yale Olympic runner, was entered but did not start.

It was a cold, bleak day for sparsely-clad athletes to run outdoors, and only a buffalo or an Eskimo would have been comfortable. Just before 3 o'clock, when the race was started, a flurry of snow added to the shivers, and the spectators made a polite raid on a pile of old football sweaters in the gymnasium.

Eisele and a half dozen others formed a leading group for half a mile, then the Princetonian went to the front and cut out the pace. It was a heartrending one, and several persons at the first mile point caught Eisele's time as 4m. 35s. He went around Barnes like a hound after a jackrabbit, and let out a link at every level stretch. He held the lead until about half a mile from the finish, when he was taken sick.

This left Colpitts and Jones to fight it out for the first place. The Cornell runner had passed Jones, and when they turned into the home stretch it seemed almost certain that Colpitts would win, but by a magnificent spurt Jones forged to the front and broke the tape one-fifth of a second ahead of the Cornell man. The next two places went to Pennsylvania, but as their fourth man was the 17th they did not win the meet. Cornell's men came in well bunched and won the meet with the score of 22, Pennsylvania finishing second with the score of 25.

Jones' time for the six miles was 35m. 28½s., which is 56½s. faster than the previous record for the course. Under the system of scor-

Saturday, December 1, 1906.

The following note was received by Dr. Pritchett yesterday morning and is published with the consent of Mr. Cabot.

My dear Pritchett:

The wish of the Technology boys to show their feeling for my brothertouches us all very closely, and I have asked my cousin Harry Cabot to see you in the morning to tell you what arrangements he can make for them.

You all know how Sam loved the old Institute, and their appreciation of him gives Mrs. Cabot and the children great pleasure.

If I can ever be of help to any of them I shall feel it a privilege.

With affectionate regards,

Yours,

ARTHUR T. CABOT.

To Henry S. Pritchett, Esq.

Owing to unfortunate delays THE TECH was unable to publish the results of the Cross Country run on Wednesday afternoon as had been intended. All arrangements had been made to have the results telegraphed up from Princeton by the representative of THE TECH immediately after the finish of the race, but owing to over an hour's delay in starting the run and tardiness in the telegraphic connections, the results were not received here until seven o'clock.

The run was scheduled for two o'clock, but the managing officials, with apparent disregard for the success of the meet, delayed the start till after three o'clock, keeping the contestants, who were all ready, anxiously awaiting the ordeal. When the start finally came many of the men were out of condition and far from able to do their best.

The poor management of the run caused much dissatisfaction among the competing colleges, and a protest is being made by some, with the hope of averting a recurrence next year.

The acquaintance of most of us with the various professors and instructors is unfortunately, to a large extent merely superficial and perfunctory. The Kommers offer the best possible opportunity for students and professors to meet and chat informally, and the large number of men who have attended these functions lately had inspired us to hope that more intimate relations might be established between members of the instructing staff and those under their charge. Unfortunately, however, the Faculty has not been represented at the Union on these occasions as often or as well as we would wish, and their absence has been much commented on. THE TECH takes this opportunity of extending a standing invitation to each and all of them and wishes to assure them that their presence would be very much appreciated by the student body.

BOSTON CLUB DINNER.

The first monthly dinner of the Boston Club of 1905 will be held at 7.15, sharp, Dec. 4, at the Technology Club. It will be a strictly informal affair to which all 1905 men are welcome, no formal membership being necessary. At a recent meeting for the formation of the club nearly twenty men signified their intention of joining and since then several new ones have been heard from and a good attendance is expected. The only expense attached to this club is the payment of sixty cents for the dinner, so every 1905 man in this vicinity should be on hand just for the fun of a reunion with the boys. Much of the future of this enterprise depends on the success of the first few dinners and no effort will be spared to have a good time.

in contact with him. What then, can be said by those who knew and loved him best!

"One who knew him for forty-five years; as a boy at the old Public Latin School; as an athlete in the gymnasium and upon the campus; as a young business man, working hard and intelligently; and as a man who finally won wealth and enjoyed the love and respect of all; never heard him utter an impure word nor knew him to do an unkind act.

"Men such as Samuel Cabot impart glory to the human race and leave the world better and purer for having passed through it. At this season it is good for us, his friends and admirers, to give thanks to Almighty God for vouchsafing to us the privilege of having known him and partaken of the abundant kindness which filled to overflowing his gentle, loving heart."

When Mr. Underwood first saw Bruno he weighed only about two pounds, but grew rapidly and now at four years of age he weighs over three hundred pounds and is quite a little taller than his owner.

Besides the lantern slides showing the growth of his pet, Mr. Underwood had slides showing the logging roads in winter and in summer, the streams down which the logs are floated, canoeing scenes, wild bird photographs, and camping scenes.
